

MINERS DECIDE MANY MATTERS

Held Meeting This Morning And Adopted The Scale--Committees' Reports.

ANTHRACITE COMMITTEES NEXT

This Afternoon The Operators And Miners Are Discussing
Ways And Means--Miners' Meeting
Tonight.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Indianapolis, Ind., March 29.—After being in convention a short time this morning and endorsing the action of the scale committee the miners adjourned to meet in joint conference with the operators at two o'clock this afternoon. President Mitchell today called a meeting of the anthracite committee for this evening. The committee consists of the executive boards of the three anthracite districts and President Mitchell.

Mitchell Will Stand

President John Mitchell Wednesday held the railroad companies which control the vast coal fields to be responsible for the approaching strike. He charged the railroads with deceiving the public and the miners into believing the coal business is not prosperous enough to permit of giving higher wages to the miners, while in reality, he asserted, a great conspiracy exists to conceal the large profits on fuel.

It was Mitchell's last card before submitting the strike question finally to the miners' convention. This will be done today at a special session, the call for which was issued last night. The decision of the miners, it is known, will be for war, and a report to this effect probably will be made at once to a joint conference.

Mitchell's attack on the railroads created a sensation. Standing defiantly before 600 bituminous coal operators he declared:

"The American people demand to know what are the relations between the railroads and the coal companies. They demand to know if the mines are not owned by the railroads and if the profits on the coal are not transferred to the books of the railroad companies and made to appear as rail profits. Before the strike is over the people will insist upon knowing why, with the great prosperity in the coal business, the railroads could not afford to pay the miners an advance in wages and avert an industrial calamity."

One Ownership for Both

Mitchell followed this with a series of pointed questions, singling out the specific coal companies and railroads which, he asserted, were under one ownership and one control. He forced representatives of the coal companies present to admit the truth of his charge. The operators, however, protested that while the stock is held by the railroad financiers the coal mines are run independently of the railroads.

"In many states," returned Mitchell, "it is a penitentiary offense for the railroads to own coal companies, but I do not see any coal operators in the penitentiary."

President Mitchell's coup was sprung at the opening of the afternoon session. The morning session had been occupied with a discussion of the conditions in Illinois and the average of miners' earnings throughout the country. The latter topic aroused the miners' chief and led up to his attack on the concealment of coal profits.

Asks About the Profits

"I want to know," he began, "what are the profits of the Vandallia Coal company?"

The bluntness of the question caused apparent consternation among the operators, but President Mitchell continued to read the other questions, as follows:

"What is the relationship between the Doering Coal company and the Rock Island and Trisco railroad systems?"

"What is the relationship between the Big Four railroad and the O'Gara Coal company?"

"What profits does the Illinois Central railroad make out of its mines known under the name of the Madison Coal company?"

"What is the relationship of the Missouri Pacific and the Western Coal and Mining company?"

"What connection does the East Troy railroad have with the Donk Brothers Coal company, and what profits are absorbed in the freight rates of the railroad, Mr. Donk owns from his southern Illinois mines to St. Louis market?"

"What part of the profits of the Peabody Coal company of Chicago is charged up to the Pawnee railroad?"

Must Open All Books.
At this point Mr. Mitchell turned and faced John H. Winder, chairman of the operators, and said:

"I want Mr. Winder to tell what part of the profits of the Sunday Creek Coal company is absorbed by the Hocking Valley railroad. He has declared that the coal operators cannot afford to pay three cents a ton more to the miners because business is so poor. He has offered to open the books of the Sunday Creek Coal company to prove his statement."

"I want to say that if the miners accept this offer they will demand as part of the investigation that the books be opened also to show the profits are changed, so to speak, from one pocket to another by the railroad corporations, and charged to freight rates. I tell you that the miners will not allow you to play the old game which was worked down in the anthracite field years ago of robbing Peter to pay Paul."

Mr. Winder was the first to rise to reply to Mr. Mitchell. He declared that he would answer the question frankly.

"True, every share in the Sunday Creek Coal company," he said, "is owned by the Hocking Valley railroad. I don't mind having this investigated. I assure you our coal mines earn practically nothing. There is no connection, however, between the management of the Hocking Valley railroad and the Sunday Creek Coal company, and we pay the same freight rates as other customers of the road."

Two Operators Deny Charges

Each of the coal representatives whose companies Mitchell had mentioned followed in a similar vein with the exception of B. F. Bush of the Western Coal and Mining company of St. Louis, who declared the Missouri Pacific, to his knowledge, owned no part of the stock in the coal concern, and Thomas O'Gara, president of the O'Gara Coal company, who denied any connection with the Big Four railroad.

C. R. Hammond explained that the Rock Island financiers had purchased $200,000 worth of bonds in the Deering Coal company and stood ready to double its purchase.

Speaking for the chief of the Madison Coal company, A. J. Moorshead said that while a stockholder in the Illinois Central owned considerable stock in the coal concern, the coal business was run entirely separate and the books of the one kept entirely distinct from the books of the other. His company, he said, courted the most rigid investigation on that score.

Answers Are Satisfactory.
At the conclusion of the replies Mr. Mitchell made no other comment than to remark:

"I am satisfied with the confessions."

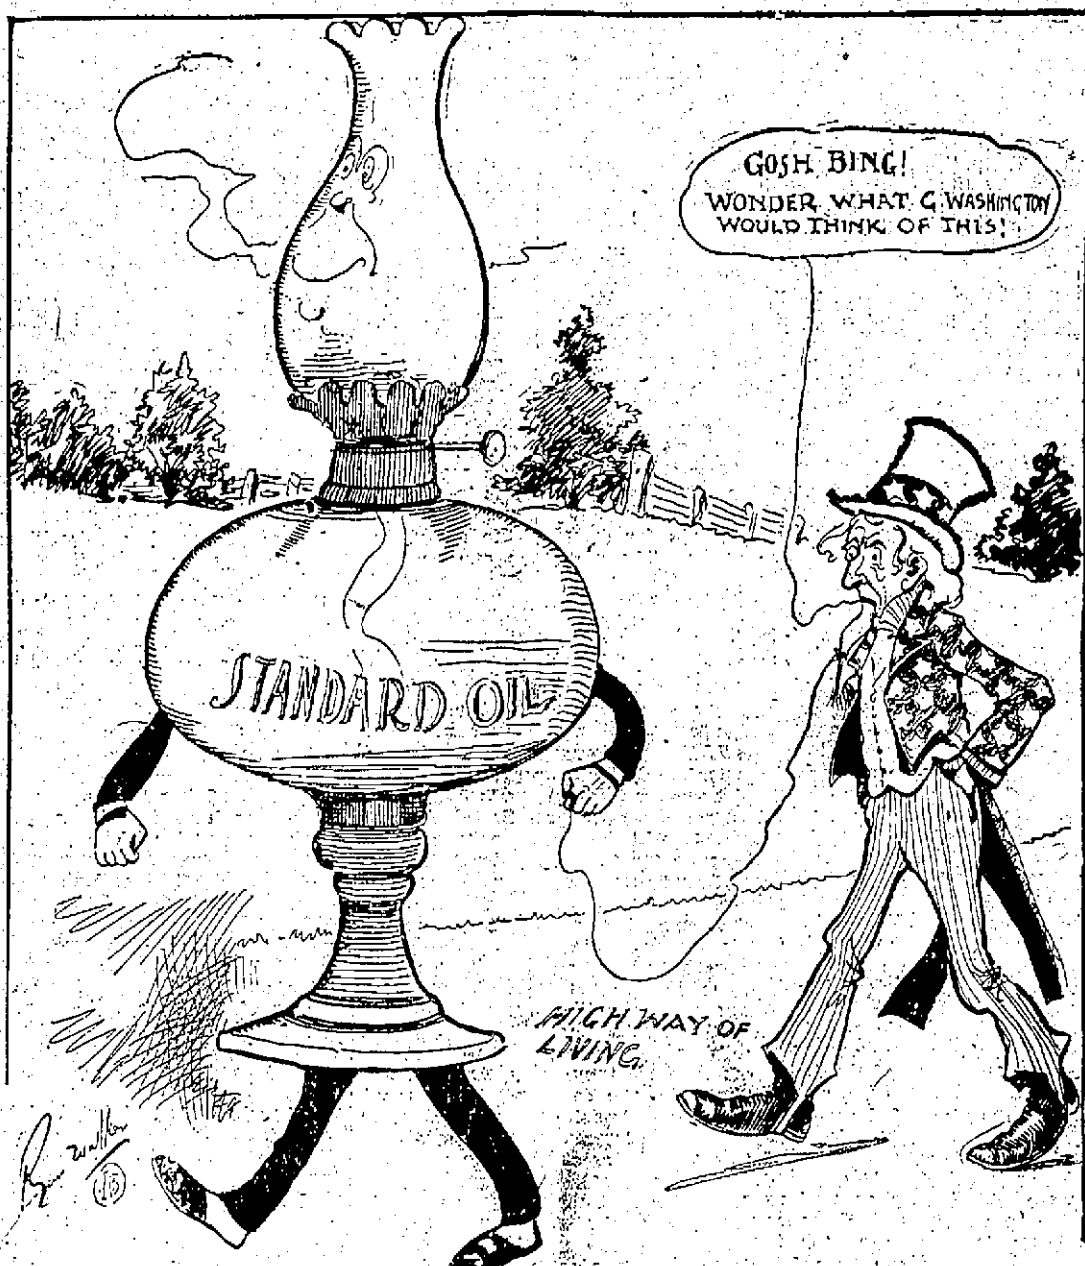

The debate was confined to a motion made by Mr. Winder at the opening of the convention that the old scale of wages be renewed. At this juncture Mr. Mitchell moved that the discussion on the subject be closed.

A vote then was taken on Winder's motion, which was lost, the operators voting solidly in favor and the miners unitedly against it.

Francis L. Robbins, who had maintained a long silence, with the exception of one or two sallies, rose immediately following the defeat of the motion and brought up the question of allowing the western Pennsylvania district to operate its mines regardless of the action of the operators of Illinois, Ohio and Indiana.

Before introducing the subject, however, the Pittsburg operator, who constantly has fought side by side with Mitchell and the miners, took occasion to strike back at his enemies among the operators, who had accused him frequently of playing traitor to their interests. One of his shafts in this direction struck the mine owners sharply.

"If the operators had spent some time in trying to make a wage scale instead of attempting to prevent one being made," he exclaimed, "we would have reached a settlement with the miners long ago."

GARIBALDI'S WOMAN ALLY GONE BEYOND

Signora Jessie White Mario, Dead—
Was Called Bravest Woman of Modern Times.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Rome, March 29.—Signora Jessie White Mario, who went through the Garibaldi campaign for a united Italy, is dead at Florence. As a young girl, named Jessie White, she left her home in England while still in her teens, to study art in France and Italy. She was the daughter of a well-known Isle of Wight boat-builder. In Italy she made the acquaintance of the Garibaldi family, and acted as a sort of governess in the Garibaldi household. In 1857 Miss White was engaged in journalistic work, and contributed to English newspapers articles dealing with the political situation in Italy. About this time she married Major Alberto Mario, one of Garibaldi's officers. She threw herself with ardor into the struggle for Italian unity, and was imprisoned with her husband for a month or two, being banished at the end. After a stay in America Signor and Signora Mario rejoined Garibaldi's camp. With Garibaldi's "red shirts" Signora Mario went through the Italian campaign of 1859 and 1860. She had on several occasions to escape from dangerous situations in disguise, and she frequently risked her life by taking the place of others who were being pursued and in imminent peril of capture. Garibaldi spoke of her as the bravest woman of modern times, and Mazzini, Victor Emmanuel, and other Italian leaders were warm in admiration of her. She refused all rewards for her services with the exception of two gold medals, which were struck in her honor by some of the wounded whom she had attended in her office as inspectress of ambulances, a post conferred upon her on the battlefield of Garibaldi.

SENSATION FOR NEW YORK MEN

J. P. Morgan's Partner Is Arrested But Afterwards
Secures His Release.

IS IN THE CUSTODY OF HIS COUNSEL

District Attorney Jerome Plays a Trump Card In The Insurance Mess Late Yesterday Afternoon.

[Special to The Gazette.]

New York, March 29.—George W. Perkins, partner of J. P. Morgan and formerly vice president of the New York Life Insurance company, was arrested Wednesday afternoon by County Detective Edward Reardon of the district attorney's office, and after a writ of habeas corpus had been granted him by Judge Greenbaum, sitting in the supreme court, was liberated in the custody of his counsel, Lewis L. Delafield.

Perfunctory and technical through-out the entire proceedings were planned in advance on agreement between District Attorney Jerome and Mr. Perkins. When Reardon arrived at 1 Nassau street, where Mr. Delafield has his offices, with a warrant charging grand larceny signed by Magistrate Joseph H. Moss in the Tombs police court, he found Mr. Perkins awaiting him there.

Handing the accused the paper, Reardon said: "I must trouble you to come with me."

Mr. Perkins took the paper, read it carefully, and then turned to Mr. Delafield and asked what he should do. The lawyer asked the detective to wait in the office until he had gone to the court to ask for a writ of habeas corpus, which it had been agreed would be forthcoming immediately.

Detective Answers Writ.

Judge Greenbaum granted the writ as petitioned. The application set forth that Mr. Perkins was imprisoned and restrained of his liberty by Reardon, and that he was not committed or detained by virtue of the final judgment or decree of a competent tribunal of civil or criminal jurisdiction or the final order of such a tribunal made on a special proceeding instituted for any cause except to punish him for contempt of court. It was alleged that his imprisonment and restraint were wholly illegal and that the warrant was void, in that no evidence of any crime or act justifying his arrest had been submitted to the magistrate.

Appended to the petition was a copy of the warrant issued by Magistrate Moss, which set forth that George W. Perkins committed the crime of grand larceny in its first degree Dec. 30, 1904.

The date named was that on which Mr. Perkins reimbursed himself for the payment of $48,000 to the Republican national committee as the contribution of the New York Life.

When the paper which commanded Reardon to produce Mr. Perkins in Judge Greenbaum's court was served on the detective, he at once proceeded with his "prisoner" and the latter's counsel to the Supreme court, where Mr. Jerome and Assistant District Attorney Jerome Kresel were awaiting them.

Will Argue Case Friday.

On being recognized by the court Mr. Delafield asked leave to traverse or demur to the writ and asked that Saturday morning be set as the time for argument. The judge, however, said that Friday afternoon would be more convenient, and with the consent of the district attorney and counsel the argument was set for Friday at 2 o'clock.

"Mr. Perkins," said Mr. Delafield in his application to Judge Greenbaum, "a man of upright character and unimpeachable honesty, has been charged with a technical offense. The facts of the case are these: Cornelius N. Bliss, treasurer of the Republican national campaign committee, called upon Mr. Perkins at the offices of J. P. Morgan & Co., and told him that John A. McCall, president of the New York Life Insurance company, had told him that the company would contribute $50,000 to the campaign fund. After verifying this statement, Mr. Perkins gave Mr. Bliss a check on his personal funds for $48,500."

"In December the question of reimbursement came up and was submitted to Mr. McCall, who acknowledged the correctness of the claim and then turned the matter over to the finance committee, which had charge of such matters. This committee immediately ordered a payment of the sum, with interest to be made to Mr. Perkins and an entry was made in the ledgers of the company under date of Dec. 5."

"It is true that Mr. Perkins has committed an offense, then the names of all the men on that committee should be brought into this affair, as they are all equally guilty."

MAYORALTY FIGHT VERY INTERESTING

Madison Has a Red Hot Saloon and Anti Saloon Campaign on Its Hands.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., March 29.—The capital and university city of Wisconsin is in the throes of a spirited municipal political contest over the saloon issue. Leslie B. Rowley, a young attorney, attorney and real estate dealer, is the republican and anti-saloon nominee. He is opposed by Joseph C. Schubert, a photographer, who has been an alderman for eight years and who stands for a "liberal" policy with respect to the enforcement of the ordinances regulating the liquor traffic. He was nominated in the primaries by the democrats without opposition, therefore getting only some 400 votes. Mr. Rowley had a hot contest with Dr. Frank Smith in the republican primaries, winning with the united student and church and reform vote by a total of over 2,000 and a plurality over the liberal republican candidate of nearly 500. The favorite in the contest at this time is Mr. Rowley, for the reform spirit has "caught on" perceptibly and there is an aggressive demand for strict regulation of the saloons, including the closing of these places after the midnight hour and on Sunday. One of the strongest arguments of the Rowley supporters is that the saloons have wrecked many students and brought disgrace upon the city, the university and the state. Mr. Rowley is 31 years of age, was born in Michigan, lived in Madison for 30 years, served in the city council for three years and has made a record for opposition to saloons that have been allowed to operate in unlicensed violation of the laws and ordinances.

Supreme Court Decision.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, D. C., March 29.—The interstate commerce commission today reopened for argument the case brought by William R. Hearst against the so-called anthracite coal roads, which has been under consideration by the commission for several months. The reopening of the case is due to the recent decision of the supreme court in the New York, New Haven & Hartford and other cases, construing the provisions of the act to regulate commerce, and which decision has an important bearing on the issues involved in the Hearst case.

STATE NOTES

E. C. Higbee, a La Crosse attorney, has declined the appointment by Gov. Davidson as Wisconsin delegate to the Mississippi valley Latin American convention at New Orleans, April 6 and 7.

A. R. Fuller, agent at Racine of the Chicago and North-Western railway, with his wife and daughter, were nearly suffocated by escaping coal gas Tuesday night. They were unconscious when discovered.

The old Main street bridge at Racine came near being put out of commission on Wednesday by the Barry line steamer Empire State. The protection piles and timbers were broken and before the boat stopped its bow ran halfway through the sidewalk.

The saloon of Charles C. Emons and the barber shop of Charles Johnson of Elroy burned early Wednesday morning. The loss on saloon and building is $5,000; insurance, $3,000. The loss on the barber shop is $400, and insurance $250. It took heroic work on the part of the firemen to save the stores on either side.

WHY WILD-RICE DON'T GROW

And Several Other Interesting Subjects Are Discussed by Learned
Ornithologist and Botanist.

Knowledge of the habits and haunts of wild animals, the flight and feeding places of the birds, the trees, the herbs, and the flowers that grow on the hillside and meadow, may buy no bread, but it affords never ending delight to the one who makes its pursuit a serious pastime. Halvor L. Skavlem not only knows the lore of the creatures of the earth and water and the upper air, but he has devoted special study, for instance, to odd fungi which reach their maturity before sun-up, the insect colonies which have preyed upon them before most men have shaken off the shackles of sleep, and many mysterious weeds and grasses which flourish underneath the surface of lake and stream. Everything he has seen he has studied. In his cozy library a few evenings ago he talked at random concerning some of the subjects which have been of special interest to him. He had something to say about wild-rice, the cottony maple scale, the old feeding grounds for the canvas-backs at Lake Koshkonong, the edibility of roast blue heron (which, under the name of "Koshkonong turkey," has caused more than one wayfarer to smack his lips), the food value of hawks, pole-cats, and snakes; the buffalo which once roamed the prairies of southern Wisconsin; the native buffalo-fish which is displacing the dainty carp in river and lake hereabouts, and is a sort of "whiskerless" cousin of the old favorite of the epicures; the copper and lead mines which the Indians used to work long before Janesville capital filled the Platteville district with sucker-holes; the German-silver cross carried by the Jesuit fathers; one of the total number of three ever found in the state—which he picked up at the lake and which was coveted and at length possessed by Horace McElroy; and other kindred topics. It has taken considerable space even to mention a few of them, and Mr. Skavlem's plans for making an exhibition of his mounted birds for the school children on Arbor Day have been overlooked in the listing along with other interesting data. What is to follow will be concerned with two or three, the first being the cottony maple scale.

Cottony Maple Scale.
Eighteen or twenty years ago this pest worked so effectively in Janesville and vicinity as to destroy many of the most beautiful shade trees. Some of the owners cut the entire tops off, grasping eagerly at the first hope of even saving the trunks. The very next year there was an invasion by a number of insects of the lady-bug species whose larvae feed upon the scales and the trees which had survived the ravages of the preceding season were saved. So thoroughly does Mr. Skavlem believe in this balancing function of Nature that he refuses to view with any considerable alarm the inroads made hereabouts by this insect (pulvinaria) innumerable) during the summer and fall of 1905.

While the timely invasion of the '05's was in progress he one day came upon the late Judge John R. Bennett punching viciously with his cane the little white wads which littered the sidewalk. The judge was laboring under the misapprehension that he was exterminating the scales to the infamy. Instead he was killing off the little friends in need—the larvae of the two-spotted lady-bug—which had come to explore the trees, burrow into the cottony sack where the female scale had laid her thousand of eggs, and make a meal of the embryonic heirs apparent to the tree destroying kingdom. In their foraging the small spines on the backs of the lady-bug caterpillars had caught and borne away portions of the "nests." So they were only straight-forward little thieves which carried with them all the evidence necessary to convict.

How The Insect Destroys.
The male scale is a small, delicate, two-winged fly which develops its later stage under a glassy test or covering and emerges late in August or early in September. Various species of maple, particularly the soft maple—including the box-elder—are the favorite food plants of this species and the willow, poplar, elm, oak, and

What Pure Food Laws Will Mean

They Will Protect the People Against Adulteration And Substitution.
Every sane, wholesome-minded person should welcome adequate, equitable pure food laws, and should lend his every effort to the passage and enforcement of such pure food laws as will make adulteration and injurious substitution impossible.

In these days of adulterated foods and food products such a food as is known to be pure and wholesome is indeed welcome. Among all the breakfast and cereal foods offered the public today, we believe we are warranted in saying that Malta-Vita is the only food that is simply and wholly pure grain product and nothing else, except a little salt. Malta-Vita as it comes to you from the factory is all of the wheat. It has been thoroughly cleaned, steamed to gelatinize the starch, then added to it barley made from selected barley—this acting upon the starch turns it into maltose or malt sugar, pronounced by physicians and food experts the finest, purest, most healthful sweetening agent known. Then the wheat is rolled out into a thin water flake and baked in the ovens. It comes to you fresh, crisp, pure and sweet—absolutely nothing but a grain product prepared in the cleanest and most wholesome way and turned into the most delicious whole wheat food that can be found. All grocers sell Malta-Vita. Now 10 cents.

various kinds of fruit trees and bushes are not immune. The large, white, downy masses resembling popcorn fastened to the twigs, which appear on infected trees during the month of June, are the cottony (really waxy) bags spun by the female for the retention of the eggs. The larvae (insects in the form-in which they appear from the time they emerge from the eggs until the time when they assume all the characteristics of their parents) hatch at various dates from June 1 to August 15. They swarm over the twigs and settle on the leaves—along the midribs and veins—always preferring the under surface. At this time they give to their abiding places the appearance of having been sprinkled with red dust.

Now the leaves are the lungs of the tree and when the pores are dried by these sap-sucking insects and the "lungs" wither, the whole body is smothered and doomed to die of consumption if the pest be not abated. The male insect, when it reaches maturity, resembles a small snail. In September the young females move back to the twigs where they insert their probosces and become fixed for the remainder of their existence, exuding a gelatinous substance which forms the scale from which they take their common name and under which they spend the winter.

When the sap begins to flow in the spring the female grows rapidly. In May or early June the work of spinning the sack for the eggs begins again and the whole process outlined at the beginning is repeated. Besides the lady-bug, the natural enemies are the English sparrows which feed on the full-grown scales and the chalcid flies which perform a service somewhat similar to that of the lady-bugs.

Winter Is Time For Remedies.

Where the infection is serious enough to warrant spraying, it should be done in the winter, because it is next to impossible to do the work thoroughly when the trees are leafed out and because at this time the little insect enemies of the scale are hibernating in the lichens and moss and dried grass at the bases of the trees. On this latter account care should be exercised in the use of the spray—the bases should be covered with canvas to prevent the fluid running down the tree trunks and carrying death to the scale's foes as well as the scales themselves. Kerosene emulsion of not more than ten to twelve per cent of oil can be safely applied to maple trees. Box-elder will be defoliated by a twelve to fifteen per cent solution. Less than ten per cent will be of little value unless the spray is applied in summer after the young have been hatched.

A stock solution of the emulsion issued by Secretary of Agriculture Wilson on September 7, 1905, and furnished by Mr. Skavlem, may be made with sixty-six per cent oil. Two gallons of kerosene, a half pound of whole oil or laundry soap or a quart of soft soap and a gallon of water are mixed, the soap being dissolved in boiling water at the outset. The stock solution must be diluted before using. To make a ten per cent emulsion add to each gallon of the stock solution six gallons of water and agitate thoroughly before using. For a thirty per cent solution which is of sufficient strength to kill a large percentage of the hibernating females without injury to the trees (in winter) add to each gallon of the stock one and one-third gallons of water.

Wild-Rice Projects.
Some time ago there was considerable discussion regarding the disappearance of the wild-rice at Lake Koshkonong and it was urged in some quarters that an effort be made to replant the grain there in order that the old attractiveness of that body of water for the wild-ducks might be restored. The loss of the rice is credited to the unusual level of the water which has been from one and a half to three feet higher of late years than it was in former times. The plant thrives best in about twelve to eighteen inches of water and moss and does not grow at all where the depth is much greater. To a certain degree it has retreated to the marshes where it used to be harvested before the water-level rose, and remained higher in mid-summer instead of lower—the normal condition in Nature.

So, the rice having failed to adapt itself to these changed conditions, it was conceived that by planting beneficial results might be obtained. But when this project was discussed at luncheon to the dismal failures which had attended similar efforts elsewhere, invariably crept in. The wild rice from the seed-houses didn't grow. The same was probably true of most of the grain which used to be purchased of the Indians and exported from Janesville.

Postmaster C. L. Valentine, both before and after the traffic here was abandoned, was besieged at times by inquiries from sportsmen in neighboring states regarding the seed where it could be obtained, and so forth. He finally wrote to the authorities at Washington and suggested a bulletin on the subject. The bulletin has since been issued.

Must Keep Seed Submerged.

Speaking of the experiments carried on by the government, Mr. Skavlem said that they demonstrated conclusively that the wild rice, when dried, loses its vitality. Not one per cent of the dry seeds ever sprouted. Those obtained from the Indians could not be reasonably expected to grow, for the rice, when gathered, unless promptly dried, ferments, and it is their practice to resort to the preventative expedient of placing it on a screen over a slow fire. After the failure with the dry seeds the government authorities placed a quantity of freshly gathered rice in jars of water and kept it in cold storage of from thirty-two to thirty-four degrees during the winter. Results obtained from the spring planting were gratifying. Over eighty per cent of the seed grew. After all, this was the obvious thing to do. In its natural environment, the rice, after ripening, falls to the surface of the stream or lake, and after floating for a time and becoming water-soaked, sinks to the bottom. It does not germinate until the following spring when the higher temperature of the water which, perhaps in the form of ice, has protected it during

By William Wolff Smith.
Washington, D. C. (Special correspondence).—At the request of Chairman J. A. Tawney of the House committee on appropriations, Postmaster General Cortelyou has supplied him with a memorandum on what it cost the postoffice department to handle the congressional free seed distribution. To be on the safe side, the postmaster general refers merely to the actual outlay, which is to say, the sum which the department pays the railroads for carrying the seeds. He writes: "As nearly as can be estimated, the cost of carrying a pound of this mail matter varies from five to eight cents. I have been informed that the aggregate weight of vegetable and flower seeds distributed annually by the department of agriculture under frank is 690,000 pounds. The estimated number of packages is 7,300,000. Computing at the lowest estimate—five cents a pound—the cost of handling this matter is $34,500."

Postmaster General Cortelyou does not, it will be seen, make any allowance for the clerks here incidentally handling the seeds while passing through the mails, nor for the loss of revenue from the government sending them out instead of the seed merchants. There are seven million, three hundred thousand packages. These are handled many times, first by the Washington office, then by the railway mail clerks and then at the office where they are distributed and finally by the carriers, city or rural. As the postmaster general privately says, it is improbable that any additional clerks or carriers are employed on this account, but nevertheless it is evident that the presence of 7,300,000 pieces of matter must clog the mails and take up the time of the clerks and carriers, which might otherwise be profitably employed. Estimating that each package requires only one minute in the aggregate of the time of a clerk or carrier from the time of mailing to delivery it will be seen that the entire time of fifty postal employees is occupied with this matter, and at an average salary of one thousand dollars a year this amounts to fifty thousand dollars per annum. It is more likely, however, that the time is longer than a minute—probably five minutes, including that consumed in delivery, which means $250,000 in clerk and carrier hire.

Nor is this all, for as far as known, there is no department of the government in this city which burdens the mails with franked correspondence as does the agricultural department with its free seeds. If all the seeds are sent out in packages of five packets it means 7,300,000 packages or an average of 24,000 packages a day for a year of three hundred working days. This is more mail than leaves the great treasury department daily—more than goes out from the war state and navy departments combined, and many times as much as is sent out by the department of justice. The pension office may approximate it, but it is doubtful, for the total would give an average of a letter to every pensioner on the rolls seven times a year. Excluding matter from the pension agencies, it is not believed even the pension office equals the seed distribution bureau in the amount of free mail matter.

Seeds are mailable at one-cent for two ounces or less. At this rate the seeds now distributed free and under frank, would, under paid postage, bring a revenue of $73,000 to the postoffice department, estimating that each package weighed precisely two ounces. Seedsmen, however, claim that they would sell the bulk in single packets; were it not for the free distribution, and pay one-cent postage on each package, or a total of $360,000. Since writing the above my attention has been called by a prominent seedsmen to the fact that should any individual firm mail seeds as the United States government mails them, they would have to pay full letter postage on the five packets containing the five packages. These are sealed, and are 690,000 pounds of this matter, and letter postage under such a condition it would amount to $220,800.

A Virginian postmaster writes concerning free seeds as follows: "Each year a great mass of packages come under frank and about half of them are addressed to persons that are dead or moved away—some of them ten to fifteen years—yet the seed comes to them. Not ten in a hundred persons care a fig for them, and take them reluctantly. One man said he would give them to his fowls."

Speaking of "free seeds," I accidentally came across an unusual situation the other day. A newspaper correspondent had requested a senator to obtain for him some government documents now out of print. The senator was anxious to oblige his friend so his secretary "exchanged" five thousand packages of seeds with a professional "exchanger" at the capitol, for the documents in question. A day or two later a member of congress had a call for four thousand packages of seeds and his clerk also sought the "exchanger" and paid him fifteen dollars a thousand packages for the seeds which originally belonged to the senator. This developed the fact that there are men at the capitol who make their entire living "exchanging" seeds for documents and vice versa and then selling them for cash. One man has been in this business for thirty years and makes a good living at it.

At the risk of being tedious I feel that I should say something additional on the subject of ship-subsidy. For a number of years I have made more or less of a specialty of "ship-

Northwestern Road.

Fireman Hiller has returned to work on switch-engine number 773 days.

Two Janesville firemen have received runs by a recent bulletin. J. J. Russell is on a swing with Engineer A. J. Brown on second 509 and 528 and 529. Louis Gestland caught 528 and 529 with Engineer Moran.

Henry Michla has entered the employ of the company and will take the night storekeeper's job at the roundhouse.

Engineer Starritt has reported for work.

Locomotive number 528 has returned from the Chicago shops and went out on the Fond du Lac passenger run this morning. Engine number 566 will return to the Watertown run to night to relieve number 130 which has been going through from Chicago.

Locomotive number 124 will return to work in a day or two.

Engineer Coen returned to work on locomotive number 773 this morning.

Fireman Hertler is laying off.

Engineer M. A. Crowley, relieved Engineer Garbutt on one run in the pool this week.

Other Roads.

A person lawfully using a highway running parallel with a railroad, is held by the Supreme Court of Mississippi (Illinois Central Railroad Company vs. Schults, 39 Southern Rep. 1005) entitled to recover for injuries from the explosion of a torpedo placed on the track to warn approaching trains of a wreck. In this case the placing of the torpedo in close proximity to the highway was shown to be a plain violation of a rule of the railroad company.

It has been agreed by the Western roads to renew home-seekers' excursion rates for the first and third Tuesdays in each month, beginning with May. The rates will be one fare plus $2 for the round trip.

The Supreme Judicial Court of Maine (Copp vs. Maine Central Railroad Company, 62 Atlantic Rep. 735) announces the rule of law that persons walking upon railroad tracks are bound to apprehend that locomotives may swiftly approach at any time, and are bound to be continually on the watch for them and leave the tracks in time to avoid collision. The mere fact that the railroad company does not prosecute persons walking on the track cannot be taken by a trespasser, as a license or permit to use the tracks as a foot path.

ELECTION BALLOTS MUST BE PRESERVED HEREAFTER

New Law Provides That They Shall Not Be Destroyed As Was The Former Custom.

Under chapter 257 of the laws of 1905, which is an amendment to section 80 of the statutes of 1898, the inspectors of election are required to preserve the ballots counted by them. Except those which are marked "objected to," such ballots must be enclosed in a canvas cover, securely sealed and returned to the county clerk together with the ones marked "objected to," which are to be enclosed in a sealed envelope provided for the purpose. The wire canvas covering and official wax impression seals which are necessary to carry out the provisions of the law must be provided by the inspectors of election. County Clerk Lee has forwarded notices to the above effect to all the towns and villages of the county. The law also pertains to primaries and was overlooked in some instances in the recent ones held here.

If there is the slightest doubt in the minds of any that Dandruff germs do not exist, their belief is compelled by the facts that a rabbit inoculated with the germs became bald in six weeks and it must be apparent to any person therefore that the only prevention of baldness is the destruction of the germ which act is successfully accomplished in one hundred per cent of cases by the application of Newbro's Herpicide. Dandruff is caused by the same germ which causes baldness and can be prevented with the same remedy—Newbro's Herpicide.

A highly ornamental annual of unusually rapid growth, forming regular pyramids from two to three feet in height, having a cypress-like appearance. The leaves are slender and of a light green until September, when they change to carmine and blood-red. WHY YOU SHOULD VOTE FOR JUDGE DUNWIDDIE

An Endorsement

The condition which prevails in this county with regard to the circuit judgeship is very unfortunate, so much so that would the voters of the county have the judge of the circuit one of their own residents, they must put aside their personal friendships and predilections and look at the situation in the one light only of securing to Rock county what belongs to it by reason of its preponderating business. It is not a question of qualifications which confronts the voters of the district. It is largely one of geography and also of volume of business. No one questions the respective ability of each of the four candidates, and no one has been heard to question their integrity as judges. It is, therefore, one of locality. Circumstances, over which the two candidates themselves scarcely have control, have placed two Rock county candidates in the field, each with his legion of friends. Both are capable, both rightfully enjoy the esteem and confidence of all the voters of the county irrespective of party. But, with the conditions that have developed the election of either is exceedingly doubtful unless the voters of the county can unite upon one candidate, and even then the result will be problematical. It would, therefore, seem to be the duty of every Rock county voter to cast his vote for that one of the Rock county candidates who appears, by force of circumstances, to have the best chances of success at the polls. Is not the situation, when examined and analyzed, more favorable to Judge Dunwiddie than to Judge Sale? For the past seven years Judge Dunwiddie has been on the circuit bench, and consequently has acquired many friends and acquaintances in Green and Jefferson counties who for various reasons, if they do not support their own county candidate, are more likely to vote for Judge Dunwiddie than Judge Sale. Both the Green county and the Jefferson county candidates will undoubtedly receive more or less votes in this county, and in the nature of things they will not receive the unanimous vote of their own counties. Judge Dunwiddie is highly esteemed by the residents of both Green and Jefferson counties because of personal acquaintance, and is consequently in a more advantageous position than Judge Sale. There is not a voter in Rock county who would not be pleased to see Judge Sale on the circuit bench. To all he has for many years been the ideal just judge in whose ability and integrity all have implicit confidence, and all would very much like to see his long labors in behalf of all the people rewarded by elevation to the circuit bench. But is it the time now for such elevation? Rather, are the conditions favorable to secure such a deserved promotion to Judge Sale? The Free Press is obliged to confess that after a careful and impartial survey of the field it cannot answer these questions in the affirmative. It sincerely wishes it was otherwise, but the situation, analyzed and carefully examined from every point of view, leads to but one conclusion, and that is the election of either Judge Dunwiddie of Rock county or Judge Grimm of Jefferson county. Between these two the voters of Rock county can hardly hesitate which one to choose.—Beloit Free Press.

Double Endorsement

The Free Press has at last abandoned its time-honored policy not to lend its support to any particular candidate in judicial elections and advocates the election of Judge Dunwiddie.—Beloit Daily News, March 26.

Press Comment

Rivers Ready For Big Headlines.

Chicago Tribune: The Kaw, also, is about to disturb the public peace by another lawless uprising.

All Right—Clean 'Em Up!

Exchange: It is almost time for the revival of that famous spring war cry—"Clean up your yards."

Have a Radish Instead.

Oshkosh Northwestern: Fresh garden truck is getting more plentiful in the local market, but the seductive strawberry is still beyond the reach of the ordinary individual.

Sunday Is All Fools' Day.

Exchange: Next Sunday will be All Fools' day, but some of the people who are slated to be fooled will not know it until two days after, when the spring elections will be held.

No Revision—"Uncle Joe" Glad.

Chicago Record-Herald: It is pretty clear that there will be no tariff revision during the present session of congress. This fact, together with the receipt of six pairs of silk suspenders, the present of a Massachusetts man, should serve to make "Uncle Joe's" dreams sweet again.

It Grew a Man.

Boston Transcript: Mark Twain's idea of the project of securing Abraham Lincoln's birthplace as a national park is that "in the present political, moral and social atmosphere of the American people there is nothing in that line that can compare with this little model farm that raised a man."

Told in Simple Language.

Indianapolis News: Dr. Gustave Le Bon of Paris has reached the conclusion that matter finally passes away by spontaneous changes in its molecules, as illustrated in the electrons of radium; and that the result of these changes is "substances which are intermediary between ponderable bodies and imponderable ether."

Beloit Politics.

Beloit Free Press: So, Mr. Cunningham, if elected mayor, is to kick City Marshal Scheibel off the police board? But what has become of the civil service board? Will Mr. Cunningham as mayor be bigger than the law concerning civil service just as he was, as alderman, bigger than ordinance number 43?

Chief Aim—To Eat.

Marquette Eagle-Star: One of the leaders of New York society recently gave a party, the chief feature of which, if we are to judge by the newspapers, was the absence of refreshments. All agree that the innovation was a severe blow to precedent for it has become the fashion in all regulated society to eat on the slightest provocation. In fact, eating much and often seems a mark of higher civilization, and perhaps that is the reason the men are so fond of the habit.

Milwaukee Mayorality Contest.

Oshkosh Northwestern: Although Mr. Becker was not the original choice of The Milwaukee Free Press, that paper has espoused his cause with ardor since the young man secured the republican nomination for mayor of that city. But of course this was to be expected, considering that Mr. Becker is opposed to the Beggs street-car interests and also to Mayor Rose—the two things above all others which The Free Press would like to see given a black eye.

New Milwaukee Distinction.

Madison Journal: Milwaukee shares with Los Angeles the glory of being the headquarters of American prize fighting. The presence of the fighters stimulates a lot of young local chaps to go in for the thing. No contest is allowed to last over eight rounds and is styled a boxing match. Bad as prize fighting is it can be claimed that it stimulates general exercise in the same way that football does. A lot of flat-chested boys are stimulated to take some exercise through the athletic contagion resulting therefrom.

Novel And Thrilling.

New York Tribune: A new feature of journalism has appeared in Indian Territory newspapers, which have departments of public school news telling of the progress of the schools and their pupils. From one of them, "The Lehigh Leader," one may learn that the algebra class lacks only two pages of being through the book, while the Latin class is two-thirds the way through the book, that the girls of the eighth grade decline party invitations because they have to study, that a certain miss who has swears been active on the playground is this year almost a champion of algebra, that the joint debate on "Good Education" was interesting, and that boys who throw trash on the floor should be taught to pick it up.

Spooner On The Rate Bill.

Madison Journal: Senator Spooner has just made a notable speech on the railroad rate bill in which he opposed the amendment offered by Senator Bailey to have congress deprive the circuit and district courts of the privilege of suspending the interstate commerce commission's findings on rate matters. He denied that because congress created the circuit and district courts it had the power to practically "destroy" them without creating other courts to perform their duties. He said that "according to his reading of the decisions of the supreme court, it is still an open question whether congress may either directly or through a commission make maximum rates; but gave it as his personal opinion that congress has the power to make rates in interstate commerce."

Jerome Hits The "Yellows."

Milwaukee Sentinel: William Travers Jerome has spoken a courageous and timely word in his protest against the current cheap literature of abuse, incendiarism and reckless attack upon whatever happens to be exalted above the common level. It is not unlikely that Mr. Jerome has sounded the signal of reaction (for other voices are echoing his) against the curious hysteria of self-defamation, of abuse of their own institutions, manners, representatives, political and business morality, through which our people have been passing.

The old national optimism and self-regard, the boundless faith in themselves and their institutions, that foreign observers from De Tocqueville down have noted as an American characteristic, would seem to have temporarily given way to a pessimism which says or tries to see everywhere widespread and pervasive public and commercial dishonesty and rottenness in all places. How false and affected, one phase of that view is abundantly attested in the splendid fabric of credit, of faith between man and man, which makes possible the vast, interdependent and complicated system of our industrial life.

Business honesty is necessarily and demonstrably the rule in this system which yellow speech and writing is declaiming against. If a tithe, a hundredth part, of all this general self-defamation which has found violent and incendiary expression in the yellow press and in the still yellower cheap magazines with their "professional expositors" and vituperative appetite for the corrupt and unclean, were well founded, it would simply mean that the institutions, the governmental system, free public education, and all that is peculiar and fundamental to this republic, is a failure.

Woman in the Case.

One of the "ablest jurists" in this country said to the reporter: "I never decide a case, if I can help it, until I have talked it over with my wife. Whenever I reserve decision I go to her for advice. She is the best lawyer in New York. Why? Because she is not obliged to listen to the arguments of counsel."—Exchange.

Weather Still Uncertain.

This appeared on the bulletin board of a certain public library: "Will the gentleman who took a horn-handled umbrella from the stand on Wednesday kindly return it to the librarian." Some one wrote beneath in pencil: "Certainly not; weather still unsettled."

Giant Bamboo of Ceylon.

The giant bamboo of Ceylon grows to a height of eighty feet. It is used in construction of houses and bridges. Also, water pipes are made of it.

HON. JAMES O'NEILL

Of Neillsville, Wisconsin.

Judge of 17th Judicial Circuit.

Non-Partisan Candidate

Associate Justice of Supreme Court.

Election April 3, 1906.

The Seventh Judge.

Under the law of seventh justice of the State Supreme court will be chosen this spring, and fully half a dozen candidates are already being pushed to the front by zealous friends. Of all the candidates suggested none seems to us to represent all the desirable qualities to be sought in a judge more conspicuously than Judge James O'Neill of Clark county. He is in the north of old age, not yet 60, has had long experience at the bar and on the bench, is a hard student, a man of scholarship outside of his profession and with a reputation for honesty of purpose, courage in principle and exemplary life, which are above the possibility of question. Judge O'Neill comes of the same good old Scotch-Irish stock that gave the country Jackson and McKinley, his native home was in northern New York, he came to Wisconsin in 1873 and located at Neillsville where he has ever since lived and where the community with one voice and purpose delight to honor him. With Judge O'Neill on the supreme bench it would have another honest, painstaking, fearless and capable man to interpret and administer the laws.—Whitewater Register.

MISS EMMA WIEGLEF

of Milton came to Janesville this week to have a specialist attend to her teeth.

She says that Dr. Richards (who is doing her dental work) really does do painless work.

She affirms that he cut off a tooth, took out a live nerve and fitted on a porcelain crown for her all without hurting her.

These genuine testimonials are very interesting, as they reveal to the general public knowledge of the fact that we have in Janesville a man who is doing the very latest, up-to-date, 20th century, painless dentistry.

And that he is SUCCESSFUL in his claims to painless work.

BERGER IS IN THE CITY TALKING CARNIVAL AGAIN

Unforgotten Elks' Carnival Man is Willing to Give Janesville Another Chance.

J. S. Berger of the well-remembered Morris & Berger carnival shows, which exhibited here under the patronage of the Elks four years ago, is in the city feeling of the public pulse. He wishes to ascertain whether or not Janesville's appetite can be whetted for another chance at his now improved, "mascotonic" exhibition which he purposes this time to erect not on the public thoroughfares but on some handy vacant lot. Mr. Berger is willing and anxious to be persuaded to bring his vast concourse of entertainment kings and queens and jungle finds sometime in the month of June.

POLITICS TALKED ON EVERY SIDE

BITS OF GOSSIP HEARD ON THE STREETS TODAY.

VERY AIR IS SURCHARGED

City Attorney Battle and Fight for the Circuit Judgeship Prominent.

Politics and political chit chat gathered on the street corners, in the cigar stores and the "poor men's" clubs is printed below with the sole idea of allowing the people to know what is being said. There is perhaps but little interest in the city campaign outside of the attorney-judgeship fight except for the second ward, where a battle royal is being waged between George Buchholz, the republican nominee, and Edward Baumann, the democratic standard-bearer. The real fight appears to be on the circuit judgeship and it is safe to say that every two or three men you see on the street are talking of the chances of Sale or Dunwiddie or Becker or Grimm. It is doubtful if there has ever been a contest for the judgeship that has so aligned the people on one side or the other. The papers all over the district are just as full of the news of this battle as is the Gazette, but one or two in the whole district have refused to print articles for all the candidates.

All sorts of arguments are being used by the friends of the different candidates for their respective favorites. Men who have never been known to take a part in a political campaign are active in the battle for someone of the four circuit judgeship candidates. The contest and bitter personalities are indulged in by adherents of the two local candidates. Postmen do not appreciate this time of the year and one of them said today that he was doing packhorse work with the campaign literature just now and that the local mail was heavier than at election for president or state officers.

If anyone has been missed by campaign literature they should at once make the fact known and they will be placed.

In place of the name of Alva L. Hemmens, who declined the republican nomination for supervisor from the fourth ward, the republican city committee has directed that of W. H. Macdon, who was defeated for the nomination for alderman at the primaries, to be placed upon the ballot.

In behalf of John C. Nichols, nominated by 14 ballots as democratic candidate for school commissioner from the second ward, a vigorous campaign has been commenced by friends. Francis C. Grant is his republican opponent. The Nichols supporters have framed a platform for their candidate which runs something like this: "More money for the teachers; the same to be saved by the abolition of fads in the public schools; no Oh, nature study, domestic science, voice culture, kindergarten work, or anything you will."

J. W. Bates of Beloit, the candidate for municipal judge who has been "Hunted, Hounded, Maligned, Villified and Slandered for Years by Personal Enemies," was in the city today quietly listening for the echo from the "front action" rookback which he sent through the mails yesterday with the above picturesque past participles and an address to the voters. In this address "Bill" generously alludes to his opponent, C. D. Rosa, as a true Christian who deeply regrets the dastardly attacks that have been made on him.

"Say, the fight in the fourth ward isn't over yet. They say those fellows that supported Millmore are going to work like trolleys for Harry Carter and he may be elected."

"It is a relief to read about something beside the coal strike and circuit judgeship contest. Even high school basketball games or the chances of Watt being elected in the third ward are better."

"Say, this judicial campaign is getting hotter and hotter. I never thought that lawyers could become so angry over the thwarting of their pet schemes."

"I was out in Mineral Point yesterday and all I heard out there was a circuit judgeship fight, they are having in that district. That, and mining seem to be their topics of conversation."

"Say, I am for an alderman that will have all the band concerts in the park this summer," said a citizen this afternoon when button-holed by an aspiring alderman.

"Say, I just heard a fellow that wanted to beat that Rose carried Milwaukee. I did not know there was any other election going on except the one for circuit judge."

"How is this for an idea: Ask every prospective alderman to state his views on a franchise for an interurban road to Madison before election and then boost the project after election," said a business man today.

"I am no politician," said a lawyer today, "but I want to make one bet and that is that Jim Fathers is elected."

"There is no chance for an argument in the question of city attorney. Maxfield won the nomination fairly and squarely and should be elected. This after-primaries campaign of Dougherty is setting a bad example to future aspirants for office," said a business man today.

FIRE DEPARTMENT HAD A PUZZLER

Mystery of Alarm Telephoned In This Morning Could Not Be Solved.

Members of the fire department would be very glad to learn where the blaze, real or imaginary, which they were summoned to attend just before nine o'clock this morning, was located. A message transmitted by the operator at the Wisconsin Telephone Co.'s office directed them to 107 South Jackson street. Arriving there they found no evidence of fire and the neighborhood stood at the wagons mystified. The Janesville Machine Co. officials took their oaths that save under the boilers nothing was burning in their plant. So the department started on a tour of investigation, visiting first 107 North Jackson street. Nobody thereabouts could tell them about any fire. After about a half hour's search without locating even a chimney that looked suspicious, they reluctantly returned to the stations. As near as could be learned the name given by the sender of the message was Mrs. Gibbs.

LIVERPOOL MINE IS PROVING VERY RICH

Reports from Mining District Say That the Mine Is To Be a Winner.

The remarkable interest taken in zinc mining in the Wisconsin zinc field since the discovery of the now famous Baxter mine, which is owned by four well-known Janesville men, and for which it is said an actual bona-fide offer was refused of several hundred thousand dollars, is unprecedented. It is said that lightning and luck never strike in the same place twice. This is not always true. These same Janesville parties also started the Liverpool Mine, of Mineral Point, which is now said to be one of the very best in that part of the district. Very rich ore is being mined, and as much as $60.00 to $75.00 worth of ore has been taken with a single blast. Already thousands of dollars' worth of ore is on the dump ready for milling.

The Liverpool Co. have just made arrangements for the erection of a fine modern mill to be erected on the property. The Liverpool Co. has in it, in addition to the four original Baxter owners, a few other Janesville people, so the dividends will be a little more generally distributed.

INTERCLASS EXTENSIVE CONTEST WAS HELD

Jerome Davis, William Spohn, Laila Soverhill and Earl Brown To Try for Medal.

Yesterday afternoon at the high school was held the interclass extemporaneous speaking contest, preliminary to the medal event. Representatives from the Sophomore, Junior and Senior classes participated, each having drawn a subject from a list of those which have been used in the regular work this year. The winners were, regardless of position, the following: William Spohn, Jerome Davis, Laila Soverhill and Earl Brown. The judges were Justice Charles Reed, F. F. Lewis and Miss MacGregor of the school for the blind faculty. The medal competition will take place during the week of April 8.

ANOTHER BANQUET FOR SECTION MEN

Foreman of Wisconsin Division North-western Road, Called to Chicago Today.

All section foremen on the Wisconsin Division of the North-Western road, among them William Kuhlow of this city, were called to Chicago this morning, where they will be entertained by the chief officials of the division. The customary discussions of problems that confront the guests in their daily work took place and this noon a banquet was served. The men will be returned to their homes on a special train this evening. The invitations were orders to come garbed in "Sunday clothes."

ANOTHER SIGNER WHO DID NOT SIGN PAPERS

William Bates Puts Himself on Record on Question of Circuit Judgeship.

In publishing the following communication of William Bates on request, the Gazette desires to state that another name is added to the list of the gentlemen who were said to have signed Judge Sale's petition, but did not. The statement is made by the Sale campaign managers that mistakes have occurred in this list through the copying of the bar calendar. Would it not be trite to ask why the bar calendar was copied if the gentlemen had the list of the signers on the paper before them? Why use the bar calendar? The following is Mr. Bates' statement, which is published by request:

Beloit, March 29, 1906.

To the Gazette:
I am advised that my name appears as one of the attorneys signing Judge Sale's nomination paper.

I have always been an admirer of and very friendly with both Judge Dunwiddie and Judge Sale, and do not wish to be put in a false position as to either of them. In justice to both I desire to say that I never saw Judge Sale's paper and did not sign or authorize anyone to do so for me, and have so told both of them personally.

ICEBOAT CRASHED THROUGH TO WATER

Harry W. McNamara and William Lawyer in Wreck on Lake Koshkonong.

While iceboating at Lake Koshkonong Monday afternoon, Harry W. McNamara and William Lawyer of this city were given a ducking. The two were taking a few pleasure scoots across the lake and back from Pierce's point near the southern end and Mr. Lawyer was at the tiller. As they neared the western shore on one trip they came upon a seam which was frozen over. The helmsman guided his boat to jump. It answered the helm, but when it alighted the ice rotted and the boat and occupants gave way and went down. The men managed to climb onto the ice and with the help of a few who had been watching them from the Taylor House nearby reached shore. The greater part of Tuesday was spent in rescuing the boat from the water.

BIG GATHERING OF PYTHIAN KNIGHTS

Two Hundred and Eleven Visitors Here Last Evening—Rank Conferred on Class of Twenty.

Knights of Pythias and candidates numbering all told 211, arrived in Janesville last evening to attend the district meeting held at the Eagles' hall. The Beloit Lodge sent at delegation of 79 including its remarkable drill team which conferred the rank of Page, and ten candidates; Stoughton, sent 28 and two candidates; Evansville, 27, and one candidate; Brodhead, 15; Edgerton, 15; Delevan, 12; Ft. Atkinson, 10; Sharon, 1; Clinton, 12. The Madison lodge which is not in this district was represented by a delegation of three, and there were several present from the Milwaukee lodges.

The class of twenty on which was conferred the rank of Page included Stanley Woodruff, Roy Holloway, and Louis Levy of Janesville; J. W. Ames of Evansville; R. W. Short and Sven A. Rosendale of Stoughton; and the following from Beloit: J. E. Lundy, William Young, Earl Parsons, L. C. Fisk, L. A. Briggs, Frank Haberle, John Miller, Jr., Peter Carlson, W. Bliss Morgan, and Lloyd F. Saxton.

Among the notable Pythians present were C. A. Stull of Beloit, Grand Chancellor of Wisconsin; F. H. Cranes of Beloit, Past Grand Chancellor; Ogden H. Pethers, Past Supreme Chancellor; U. S. Burns of Milwaukee, Grand Keeper of Records and Seals. The latter, after the conferring of the rank had been accomplished, delivered a lecture on the secret work of the order, supplemented by some helpful remarks by O. H. Pethers.

A luncheon was served in the gymnasium quarters, after which the cigars were passed, and an informal smoker inaugurated, with W. O. Newhouse as master of ceremonies. Speakers from the several lodges represented told about their membership and work, and Oriental Lodge No. 22 of Janesville failed in an effort to convince that its whole quota of 132 was present in the circle. The festivities concluded some time after one o'clock this morning. A number of the visitors remained in the city for daylight trains.

HARTSHORN CASE ON TRIAL IN MUNICIPAL COURT TODAY

Witnesses for Prosecution Testify That Defendant Sold Pint of Alcohol.

Before a jury composed of John Wilcox, James Donahue, George Merriam, David Conger, Charles Blay, and George Aitris, in municipal court this afternoon the trial of the action brought by the State against W. L. Hartshorn of Clinton Junction on the charge of selling spirituous liquors without a permit was commenced. Dr. C. W. Colver, a dentist, testified that he purchased a pint of alcohol of the defendant on Feb. 9, without presenting any prescription or affidavit, verbal or written, that it was for medicinal, scientific, or mechanical purposes. Other witnesses corroborated the evidence. District Attorney J. L. Fisher represented the state and William Smith the defendant.

BRIEF ITEMS

Broke an Arm: Harry Fallen of Evansville is reported to have suffered a fracture of his left arm in a fall sustained upon one of the streets of Janesville last evening.

Wedded in Kenosha County: Announcement is made of the wedding at Bristol, Kenosha county, of Francis A. Barten, engineer for the C. & N. W. Ry. Co., and Miss Lulu M. Rowbottom, a former school teacher who has visited frequently in Janesville. The groom was in Janesville for a few hours today and received the congratulations of his many friends.

Two Bad Drunks: This morning John (sometimes called "Spike") Nash went to the rooms of relatives residing in apartments in one of the buildings on the Corn Exchange and took possession, terrorizing the women so that they hid in the closets until Chief Appleby came to their aid. Mr. Nash was under the influence of liquor. So was William Cunningham, a farmer, who wandered into Rehberg's shoe store this afternoon and after a fit of seasickness lay down to snooze on one of the settees. Officers Brown and Champion called a dray, loaded him on like a sack of meal and trundled him off to the lock-up.

BERNHARDT MAY COME TO JANESVILLE

Manager Myers Receives Word That He Can Secure a Date if He Wishes It.

Peter L. Myers, Janesville, Wis. Bernhardt for the 25th, 26th or 27th. Two thousand guarantee and must know quick. SAM P. GERSON, Chicago, Illinois.

The above telegram was received by Manager Myers this morning relative to an engagement of Bernhardt for Janesville. Later he held a telephone communication with Mr. Gerson in Chicago and found that Janesville would be the only Wisconsin city to be played in by the great French actress. Mr. Myers has until Monday to answer Mr. Gerson and there is a possibility that Janesville and the surrounding country can enjoy the pleasure of witnessing the greatest actress on the stage today. Such an engagement for Janesville speaks well for the city and with Milwaukee would be the second city in the state to be so honored. The guarantee of two thousand dollars would mean that Mr. Myers would have to charge five dollars a seat for the parquet, three dollars for the dress circle and balcony and a dollar and a half for the gallery. While the prices may appall some the pleasure of seeing and hearing such an actress as Bernhardt would be more than worth the charge made. Bernhardt is at present in Texas, where she has made the trust theatre combine law down and admit her to their theatres. In places where they have refused her the use of their theatres she played in tents for eleven and nine thousand people. The trust was afraid of her position and have now opened their theatres to her. If Manager Myers is successful in his venture of securing an engagement it will be a big plume in his cap and in the city's reputation to have such an actress play here.

"Judge" Andrew Hamilton

Impressions of the Man Who Has Made Some Startling Exposures in the Insurance World.

Guardian of the Famous "Saffron Hue" Canine Fund of the New York Life. Started as an Obscure Lawyer in Albany — Spicy Extracts From the Speech of a Man Who Believes in Puncturing Shams and May Be the Means of Entirely Lifting the Insurance Lid.

THIS is a dog story. To be more explicit, it is a tale of "the yellow dog" and "the curs." While it does not relate to Edward H. Harriman, and his now celebrated "row row row" by which he separated himself from the Equitable, it does concern the insurance business. The bulls, the bears and the lambs are not the only members of the high finance menagerie. The insurance dog show must be added to the list. While interest in the ordinary canine entertainment is confined to the "smart set," the insurance pets may well excite attention throughout the entire country. For one thing, they are an expensive bunch, and for another they "mix it up" with one another in a perfectly fascinating manner.

Let dogs delight To bark and bite. You know the rest. And the way these insurance canines live up to that injunction is something scandalous. For a year now their growling and yelping have filled the country, and the fight has only begun. The immense assets of the various companies proved too tempting a bone, and so the row started. What the end may be, who can tell?

The "Yellow Dog." Now, there are dogs and dogs. There are the Hyde, poodle, the Perkins pug and the McCurdy, shepherd dog, that looks after its own little flock. But the curs—and that is the reason that I come to speak before you, and to say that the great interest of $2,000,000,000 of life insurance and $400,000,000 of assets can never be safely entrusted to the administration of a lot of curs.

Started in Life as Obscure Lawyer.

Casting aside the kennel terminology, the man who has had charge of the famous "yellow dog" fund of the New York Life is "Judge" Andrew Hamilton. Hamilton, of Albany, Hamilton was born about forty-eight years ago and started life as an obscure lawyer. Finally he became assistant district attorney, and for a short time district attorney. He was also a justice in a civil court, whence his title. But he really got his start in life in the "Ten Ten" club, which met in a back room, over a saloon. This meeting place had the sanguine title of "The Jug of Blood," and the "Ten Ten" club in time came to be known as "The Lucky Bunch." The chief light of the bunch was millionaire Anthony N. Brady. He took a liking to Hamilton, whom he gave many tips on the stock market. Later his son married Hamilton's daughter. Brady introduced the "Judge" to John A. McCall, and the insurance president in time also came to have a liking for Andy Hamilton. As a result the immense legislative interests of the New York Life were placed in Hamilton's the executive officers, one and all, were conscious of what the purpose was, or what the object was and of what the expense was. I say this now, and when I look around I see their faces before me, and I challenge contradiction.

Not a word said the trustees. Again: "The men that would not know me now would come in and pat me on the back and say, 'You did it.'"

Evidently the scribbles, Pharisaees and hypocrites are not all dead yet. Here are a couple of sentences packed with menace.

"I am simply in this interruption of the ordinary course of the hearing today giving one chapter. The volume will be made up of successive chapters."

As was said of olden time, "Beware the dog." Here is another morsel:

"You have heard all the sweet protestations of innocence that have come along and how the only one to blame was the dead, the killed, when they drove into his grave and deserted, and the yellow dog."

We have heard, yes, and have sympathized with the sentence that follows: "Why, when they say they did not know, what was going on it excites my laughter, my derision."

This is not badly put. We have all felt that way about it. Here follows a rather personal allusion.

"The Pecksniff of three administrations and who thinks that he is the layman of the present one, the confidant of the Beers scandal and the author of the Beers pension."

Do you think that the man who held the same relation to Mr. Beers that I did to Mr. McCall could sit for thirteen years and not know what and how the expenditures that were made were to be made and disbursed?

Hardly, Judge, hardly. He must at least have had his suspicions of the purposes of the "yellow dog" fund.

The Pecksniff referred to, by the way, is universally said to be Mr. W. B. Hornblower, the man who is alleged to have been chiefly responsible for the Fowler report, and the desertion of McCall. President Cleveland once nominated Mr. Hornblower for justice of the United States supreme court, but the senate rejected him. The senate does some good things.

The other chapters of the Hamilton book are coming out in small installments. First there was the publication of the facsimile of an alleged receipt for $75,000 from Cornelius N. Bliss.

Another assertion made by the "Judge" is that he remained in Europe during the Higgins investigation because requested so to do by the board of trustees of the New York Life. Evidently somebody is doing some very adult lying in these matters. There is so much preparation that no one man could be responsible for all of it. An untas seems in a fair way of losing his laurel wreath.

A House of Gloom.

Hamilton had quite a little to do with the famous "House of Mirth" at Albany. He seems liable to have quite as much to do with creating a house of gloom for high finance circles in New York.

Despite all the scandal, the "Judge" maintains much of his old popularity about his home. He was recently re-elected president of the Albany club by practically a unanimous vote.

The whole insurance fight is centering more and more on the bill introduced by the Armstrong committee to legislate out of office all of the old trustees of the implicated companies. Hamilton's efforts are directed against the board of the New York Life. One of the most sensational struggles in the history of that company has recently been waged in an effort to secure proxies by the present officials in order to perpetuate their regime. The election is scheduled to occur April 11. The Armstrong bill provides that they shall be removed from office Nov. 15 next. Thomas W. Lawson charges that in order to secure proxies the management has written insurance for nothing, only requiring that the policy holder so created surrender his proxy to be used by these trustees that Hamilton has denounced as "curs and traitors."

To substantiate his claim Lawson publishes statements and contracts that have come into his possession. Samuel Untermyer, counsel of the policy holders organized by Lawson, has written to President Alexander E. Orr that he and his trustees will be held personally responsible for any proxies gathered in this way.

May Lift the Insurance Lid.

It is just possible that the insurance lid is to be lifted entirely off. The public has only had a peep in so far. With Hamilton, Lawson, Stuyvesant Fish and the Armstrong committee all tugging at the handle, the present officials may find themselves unable to hold down the cover.

Meanwhile let the people not grow pessimistic. The very fact that the light is being turned on is hopeful. Moral adjustment must come. The law of recompense has not been repealed. All nature is in equilibrium and balance. There will be a like evening up process in the human world. Justice and judgment yet live. Righteousness will yet be vindicated. The pure, the true, the honest, the unselfish yet abide on earth. The heart of humanity is good. The heavenly vision has not all departed. Whatever corruptions may come, whatever friends and social unhealth, the plain people are still sound and whole. They that love simple, old fashioned goodness, that believe in God and their country, that strive for better things and that have not been drawn aside by money madness, they yet can be trusted. Let them but know the truth and they will find a way to manifest that truth in all the affairs of men. Be yet patient for a great people is awakening, and the moon approaches.

ing the winter, quickens it to life. It would be an easy thing to sow the grain in the fall, but a large percentage would probably be devoured by waterfowl and fish just as similar contingencies on land often make fall planting inadvisable. The government experimenters obtained results from ten to fifteen per cent of the seed imbedded in ice. Mr. Skavelem suggests that the easiest and most practical method of preserving the seed would be to place a large quantity, protected by a screen, in a cask, above holes in the same, and sink it in some fairly deep portion of any stream, spring or lake which happens to be convenient.

Food For The Canvas Back.

As a botanist and ornithologist Mr. Skavelem has done considerable work for the government and in his original researches has more than once proven the great Audubon and other scientists to be in error. An instance of this was his discovery in 1895 that the so-called "wild celery buds" which formed a large percentage of the food of the canvas back duck and are supposed to impart to the flesh its fine flavor, were "none other" than the terminal buds of the pond-weed (Potamogeton pectinatus) which is locally called moss or sedge. In a paper read before the Wisconsin Natural History Society, which was published in full with elaborate illustrations in the Northwestern Sportsman magazine last summer, he says that he shot canvas back ducks on Lake Koshkonong for a number of years, believing that the "wild celery" was the food which attracted the birds to those waters, but after locating the celery buds, discovered that the ducks usually chose other spots where no celery was to be found, although examinations of their stomachs invariably revealed "buds" having a strong taste of this plant and presumably derived from it. Careful investigation of these puzzling facts finally led to the important "discovery" above noted. Besides his technically scientific articles, Mr. Skavelem, under the nom-de-plume of "Carcass", contributes to sportsmen's magazines and papers an occasional jingle or anecdote woven with "The Old Point Blind" and similar haunts of the hunters at the lake, as a setting, and Ex-Governor George Peck, "Uncle John" Ehle, and other old cronies of the camp, as the characters.

Janesville Daily Gazette, Thursday, March 29, 1866.—Odd Fellows Festival.—On Tuesday evening, March 27, the Brothers of Wisconsin Lodge No. 14 and Rock River Encampment No. 3, I. O. O. F., held their festival at the Myers House, according to appointment, there being a large number of brothers from Madison, Horton, Monroe, Chicago, Milwaukee, the sides a large number of "manosic" friends, by invitation present. After discussing the beautiful collection that had been prepared by Mrs. Myers, of the Myers House, the brethren and friends were called to order by F. G. W. L. Mitchell, President of the Odd Fellows. The President made some very appropriate remarks with regard to the great good accomplished by the Odd Fellows, and likewise the happy termination of the bloody strife we have been called upon to pass through. His remarks were not only well suited to the occasion but were truly eloquent.

L. B. Hills, Grand Secretary of the Order in this state, was called upon for an address, to which he responded and delighted the audience for some twenty minutes with his very instructive speech on the beauties of the order.

David H. Wright, P. G. M. of Madison, was the next to address the aside from the aristocratic and expensive breeds there is the "yellow dog," and at times he is the most interesting of them all.

Ordinarily the "yellow dog" is not a high priced animal, but the particular one whose biography is here set forth cost on the average $100,000 a year to one company alone. How much he cost other companies has not yet been told. Something over $1,300,000 in thirteen years was the way the dog fund got into the New York Life. There are two other big companies and scores of smaller ones. The reader can figure for himself just how expensive that saffron colored canine was. The policy holder knows, or ought to know. He paid the bills.

A "yellow dog" is supposed to take almost anything thrown in his direction—the cans, bricks, clubs, hard names and blasphemy. This dog didn't. He showed his teeth.

When those who had utilized him to catch and carry for them got into a tight place they tried to make the yellow one stand for their iniquity. As it was found that some one had been stealing chickens and killing sheep, they cried in chorus: "It was the yellow dog. He did it."

Then the dog had something to say. His remarks related particularly to "curs." He also said something about a "Pecksniff." It was probably the greatest canine speech ever made. He defended the memory of his master, whom the "curs" had deserted and driven to death. Among other things the one of saffron hue said:

"They may talk about the 'yellow dog,' but the 'yellow dog' is a dog of courage and of loyalty, but the curs who stood around this funeral and the curs who knew of these transactions and shrunk into their shoes—they are hands, and it is blotted that he also looked after the interests of the other big insurance companies.

When Charles E. Hughes and the Armstrong committee were stirring up the insurance animals they evinced a strong desire to examine the "yellow dog," but Hamilton was in Paris in the hands of several nerve specialists and refused to return. He did not seem particularly disturbed by the Armstrong investigation, but when the New York Life trustees turned on President John A. McCall and through the Fowler report required the president to make restitution for moneys given to Hamilton, which action, it is believed, resulted in McCall's death, the "Judge" suddenly became interested.

Under the name of "H. A. Milton" he took passage for New York to face his accusers and to clear up the memory of his old friend. His first step was the sensational speech before the New York legislature, and other exposures are following.

That speech has been printed all over the country, but a few sentences from it will not be out of place here:

"I look around the circle and I see here members of the board. I see among them men who have sat and listened to the stories of my victories in their behalf and have applauded, and I wonder whether it was like the line in Goldsmith—that it was counterfeited gold, or whether the attitude they have since taken has been one of counterfeited honesty."

Believes in Puncturing Shams.

Evidently this man, whatever else may be said of him, believes in puncturing shams. Here is some more:

"There never was a line or a thing done in the New York Life in my administration of my department, but

ATHLETIC EVENTS RENEWS INTEREST

Victory of the University Track Team in Chicago Pleases Students.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., March 29.—The showing made by the University of Wisconsin track athletic team in winning second place with 24 points in the new Illinois Athletic club's charity meet in Chicago Wednesday night has raised hope of a creditable intercollegiate showing if the Badger faculty can be induced to allow proper track training and provide a competent coach. The only hope of a coach is in the prospect that Harvey Holmes, former football and track star, will be brought from the west by President Van Hise. Some disappointment is felt here that Captain Waller failed to win his event, the quarter-mile run, from P. H. Powell of the Chicago Central Y. M. C. A. team. Such a change would have given the Badgers the meet with 29 points to 27 for the Chicago Christians. It is also said that Charles Parsons should have done better in the short sprints, but he is excused on account of having been at a disadventure in the way of handicaps. Waller, Parsons, Springer, Myers, Vreeland and Rideout, Wisconsin point-winners in the Chicago meet, are looked upon as excellent timber for the intercollegiate team, should the mercy of the faculty be extended to track athletes.

Student indignation against the threatened faculty action in regard to football abolition and the restraint of all other forms of sports is still hot and will remain so until the students' representatives have been granted a hearing by President Van Hise, who will return Monday from California. The students at first believed, much as do the Minnesota men, that they could be trusted to manage their athletic association themselves, but it has been shown that the faculty determined to take the management entirely out of student hands, and the students are now struggling for just a little of what they call a "square deal" so that their athletic sports will not be utterly annihilated.

94TH ANNIVERSARY DULY CELEBRATED

Mrs. James Humphrey of Uppers' Corners Reaches Ripe Old Age—Accident at Corners.

Uppers Corners, March 26.—There was a very pleasant social gathering at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Gage last Thursday, the occasion being the ninety-fourth anniversary of the birth of Mrs. Gage's mother, Mrs. James Humphrey, who has made her home with them since the death of her husband, which occurred several years ago. Mrs. Humphrey is in excellent health and bids fair to live many years.

Robert Peacock met with a very painful accident Sunday. He was ascending a ladder in his barn and when he was well up the ladder a rung broke and he fell and broke two ribs and hurt his wrist badly. It appears rather singular that he should meet with such an accident just one week from the day that his wife fell and broke her arm. They have the sympathy of many friends in their misfortune. Mrs. Robert Peacock had the misfortune to fall last Sunday and break her arm between the wrist and elbow.

H. Lewis is laid up with a broken elbow as a result of slipping down and striking his arm on the water tank.

There was a social hop at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Van Sturtevant Friday night and a very enjoyable time is reported.

DISCARDS PRECEDENT.

Recalcitrant Members Force House to Abandon Obsolete Rules.

Washington, March 29.—Representative Prince of Illinois Wednesday forced the house to adopt a motion vitating one of its most cherished rules. For a week Mr. Prince, with the assistance of Representative Chadwick (Dem.) of Georgia, has been tearing the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill to pieces. It carries allowances to defray the authorized running expenses of the three branches of the government during the next fiscal year, and does not differ materially from previous measures for the same purpose. One of the ancient rules of the house provides that no appropriation bill shall contain an allowance for any expenditure not previously authorized by law. The object of the rule is to prevent legislation upon appropriation bills. Notwithstanding, it is the common practice of the committees reporting general supply bills to embody in them appropriations which fall under the ban. Most of the laws regulating salaries of government employees have not been amended since the statutes were revised back in the '70s. The various offices have grown with the country and the increased business, but congress had not gone through the formality of providing by law for this increase. Mr. Prince and Mr. Chadwick, to point out to the country the loose manner in which appropriations are made, commenced raising points of order against each appropriation which was not authorized by law, and the chairman was forced to rule as they desired. The passage of the bill was greatly delayed. Both Mr. Prince and Mr. Chadwick knew that the items against which they made the points of order would be restored when the bill reached the senate, but this had nothing to do with their object lesson. Several whole sections of the bill were thrown out and the committee on appropriations summoned to its aid the committee on rules. This committee reported a motion which made in order the various items on the bill which had been out of order. Under whip and spur of party organization, this motion was adopted by a vote of 169 to 109, all the Democrats voting against it. This greases the way for the passage of the bill as it was reported by the committee.

Storm Over Indian Bill.

Washington, March 29.—A storm of protest was aroused in the senate Wednesday when the conference report on the bill regulating the final disposition of the affairs of the five civilized tribes of Indians was taken up. Most of the objections centered on the conference provision authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to lease the coal lands, which brought Senators La Follette, Clark (Wyo.) and Tillman to their feet. Mr. La Follette said there were 427,000 acres of these lands, worth not less than $175,000,000, and he believed the senate should call a halt on their disposal until it could make inquiry. The leasing would be as unfortunate as their sale, he said, and he held that the plan originally submitted by the Secretary of the Interior gave the lessees an undue advantage. Mr. Tillman held that the matter was of great moment, not only to the Indians, but to the millions of people who in the future will occupy that section of the country, and he suggested that the government purchase the lands. He was convinced that the railroads have got control of practically all the leases now in existence. Mr. Clark contended that the conference committee had transcended its authority.

Statehood Compromised.

Washington, March 29.—A compromise on the statehood bill that will admit Oklahoma and Indian Territory and permit Arizona and New Mexico to decide for themselves the question of their entering the Union as one state is indicated by the developments in the deliberations of the conference committees. The conference met Wednesday for the second time, and while the session was devoted to what are termed the minor amendments, it is believed that a basis of agreement on the chief question is suggesting itself naturally, and will result in the restoration of Arizona and New Mexico to the bill with the Foraker amendment. Inquiry among the senators shows that they will accept this plan. The senate amendment defining the limits of the prohibition territory in Oklahoma is regarded as the result of a general agreement among all parties interested and is acceptable. Likewise there seems little objection to the senate provision allowing the school lands to be selected in place of school lands found to be mineral lands.

Indian Supply Bids.

Washington, March 29.—The commissioner of Indian affairs has effected a change in the manner of receiving bids and awarding contracts for Indian service supplies. Instead of opening bids at the warehouses in New York, Chicago, St. Louis and San Francisco at different dates in the spring, he will open them all in Washington this year. Samples called for by the specifications will be sent, as usual, to the several warehouses. The commissioner thinks the new system will tend to economy.

Constantinople, March 29.—The sultan of Turkey has been notified that America will make no customs concessions until certain demands are satisfied.

How Great Sportsmen Started

Jockey Tod Sloane Tells How In New Orleans He Rode His First Race. An Oarsman's Contribution—Clark Griffith's First Ball Game.

Men who have risen to national fame in sport frequently recite with rare relish the trials and uncertainties of their early days, the days when they struggled valiantly for recognition.

Tod Sloane, the retired jockey, rode his first race on Feb. 5, 1889, in New Orleans. He was fifteen years old. The race was five-eighths of a mile, and he finished third on a horse named Lovelace. Tod says he was quite cool at the time, but was considerably concerned on going to the post as to how his mount was going to behave.

TOD SLOANE.

"My chief thought," he said, "was about the start. What I was worried about was whether he would get a false start and run away with me. He was a bad actor and was led to the post. I did not notice any yelling in that race, but after I had been riding while I became more cognizant of what was going on around me."

Eugene Giannini, the famous New York rowing coach, says that in his first boat race his greatest sensation was one of fatigue. His first race was as a member of the Dauntless Rowing club eight in a spring regatta on the Harlem river, New York, in the eighties. He pulled No. 5 oar, and his crew won. The race was a mile long. He described his feelings thus:

"I was so tired at the half mile I thought I would surely pass away. I didn't think I could possibly finish the race, though I did. There was a good deal of nervous excitement about it, and the novelty of the situation, so far as I was concerned, affected me a good deal. I was less tired at the mile than at the half. As we won I felt the strain less than at the finish."

"In my earlier rowing days I once caught a crab, and I determined then and there that I'd never catch another. In order to avoid doing so I got into the habit of following my oar with my eyes. The result was in my first race I couldn't keep my eyes off my oar. 'Keep your eyes in the boat, No. 5,' the coxswain kept shouting at me. The commands went to waste, and as we crossed the line the into coxswain greeted me with 'Blankety blank you, No. 5! If I had a gun I'd shoot you!'"

The first experiences of Clark Griffith, manager of the New York Americans, and John McGraw, manager of the New York Nationals, were alike in one respect. Each had to do with a tall man. Griffith was ushered into public life in 1883 in Milwaukee. He went there as a pitcher and was heralded as a phenom.

"What saved me from any embarrassment," explained Grit, "was the fact that nobody could see me. They gave me a uniform that had been made for a man six feet four inches tall, and it completely hid me from public gaze. I made a ridiculous figure, but nobody could see me. I was seventeen years old and, if I do say it myself, pitched a fine game. We won 10 to 1, the Bryan combination. I was a pretty anxious kid until the bell sounded, then was all right. No, I didn't notice the crowd or the shouting or anything on the outside after the game began; but, for that matter, I am that way still when a game is on. We'll send you back to the bushes, the opposing players said to me every time that they passed me that day, but I had a straight drop ball that would drive anybody to drink."

Jean Bougere, a second lieutenant in the Second hussars, a son of General Bougere, chief of staff of the French army, arrived at Port Leavenworth, Kansas, yesterday to enter the infantry and cavalry college.
